Friday—fish day.

The report that the President caught his trout using a worm for bait doesn't sound like the customary coolidgeconomy. Wasn't it only half a worm?

Now that the war correspondents on the Black Hills front have definitely announced that Mr. Coolidge caught a 2-lb. rainbow trout, we hope they'll stick to it and not flash a bulletin in at 9 a. m. changing it to a 3-lb. pickerel.

We trust that catching trout with worms will not cost Mr. Coolidge the anglers' vote. It is like playing tennis with a base violin.

The Nots' bad playing costs another game. We have generally noticed it's either our fault or someone else's.

Rev. Henry Lewis says there's nothing wrong with petting except that it's a waste of time, or a time of waist, or something like that, but there are no clocks along the Primrose Path. As Mr. Herrick says:

"Give me a kiss, and to that kiss a score;

Then to that twenty add an hundred more;

A thousand to that hundred; so kiss on,

To make that thousand up a million."

This new plan of public buildings in the Mall triangle with a flock of Government departments under a single roof ought to give us in time that up-to-date landing field we're looking for.

As matters now stand, Mr. Sheffeld may or may not go to the Black Hills camp to see the President, but will shortly take a trip to Europe. This is generally interpreted to mean that he has at last decided to resign.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

James Rockwell Sheffeld, American Ambassador to Mexico, who has borne the brunt of this Nation's difficulties with the Calles regime, conferred with Secretary of State Kellogg yesterday under circumstances which indicate that he will not return to his post and will quit the diplomatic service altogether.

Returning from Mexico with 27 crates of household furniture, Mr. Sheffeld was silent in New York as to his future plans and declined to say a word here yesterday. He went into conference with Mr. Kellogg at 3 o'clock and it was later stated that another conference would be held today. On previous occasions, when the ambassador had returned to leave he has reported directly to President Coolidge before discussing matters of detail with the State Department. He also has held conferences with the press, giving an insight into prevailing conditions in Mexico, whenever in the past his duties brought him to Washington.

As matters now stand, Mr. Sheffeld may or may not go to the Black Hills camp to see the President, but will shortly take a trip to Europe. This is generally interpreted to mean that he has at last decided to resign.

Garrett May Be Ambassador.

Among those mentioned as likely to succeed him is John W. Garrett, lawyer and diplomat, of Baltimore. Mr. Garrett, who is well known in Washington, served as secretary to the American Embassy at Berlin and the American Embassy at Rome, and as Minister successively to Venezuela and Argentina prior to the World War. He was secretary general to the Washington conference on limitation of armaments in 1921-22.

Mr. Sheffeld has had a difficult and eventful career since he became Ambassador to Mexico in September, 1924. He was received with acclaim by the Mexicans and every courtesy was at first extended to him. But after the Calles regime began having serious difficulties with the United States over protection of American rights, the sentiment in Mexico turned against the ambassador and for many months there has been an insistent demand on the part of the Mexican press that he be recalled.

Mexican officials forgot to treat him with particular courtesy, his name was overlooked in sending out invitations to important functions and other attempts to snub the diplomat were made. For example, when he returned to Mexico after a visit to the United States, he was met at the station by a very subordinate official, the chief of the division of protocols, whereas previously high Mexican officials had been waiting to receive him.

Handicapped by Washington.

But in spite of these difficulties, Mr. Sheffeld continued his work and was virtually compelled to assume the role

26 Air Mail Planes
Sold by Postoffice

(By the Associated Press.)

Twenty-six Douglas air mail planes were sold at auction yesterday by the Postoffice Department.

The National Air Transport, Inc., of Chicago, bought seven planes at $7,000 each, nine at $6,000 each, and one at $5,000. The Robertson Aircraft Corporation of Robertson, Mo., bought one at $6,200, one at $6,180 and one at $5,285. The planes are no longer needed, inasmuch as the air service is being turned over to private enterprise.

Rapid City, S. Dak., June 18 (By A. P.)—For the second time today President Coolidge went fishing after he had finished his evening meal tonight.

The President dropped a line in Squaw Creek, which runs past the State game lodge. He fished immediately in front of the lodge for about 30 minutes, picking up a few brook trout for breakfast.

Mrs. Coolidge came down from the house just in time to see the President pull in a pretty-good-sized trout. She watched him until he decided that the basket had enough for a good-sized breakfast.

Coming to the lodge he walked up to Mrs. Coolidge standing on the porch in a white dress and bareheaded and proudly displayed them to her.

This afternoon, when he motored to the schoolhouse, he was the Chief Executive again, minus the boots, but nevertheless seeming to smile with retrospective satisfaction. Three of the Secret Service men who accompanied him have followed the lead of Col.

Kellogg Says.

REPORT TRAILS INQUIRY

Sarsfield Smiddy, son of Timothy A. Smiddy, Minister from the Irish Free State to the United States, again has crossed swords with American police officials, it was learned last night.

This time it is the Washington police who have crossed the checkered path of the minister's son, who a short time ago was in conflict with police and Federal officials in Detroit in a liquor law case.

Proctor L. Doughtery, president of the Board of Commissioners, yesterday wrote to Secretary of State Frank Kellogg submitting a police department complaint that a person giving the name of Sarsfield Smiddy had driven across the Connecticut Avenue bridge at midnight, June 5, at a speed of 34 miles an hour. When stopped by officers he said that he had left his driver's permit at home, but investigation, according to the commissioners' letter, revealed a permit never issued to him.

Minister Smiddy could not be reached for comment on the affair last night.

Mrs. Smiddy, the boy's mother, however, said Sarsfield had not told either her or the minister of any trouble with the police. She seemed amazed that her son should be in difficulties. She said she was certain the minister knew nothing about it.

The young man was not at home last night, having gone to a nearby Virginia town earlier in the day. Mrs. Smiddy said he had been back in Washington about a month.

Sarsfield Smiddy formerly lived in Detroit, where he is understood to have been in business. He first sprang into prominence when police found him sitting in an automobile laden with whisky which was on a ferryboat, coming over from Canada. The youth, who belonged to a friend, but had merely sat at the wheel after it had been waiting to receive him.

8 KILLED BY TRAINS IN 2 GRADE CRASHES

Entire Family of Five Wiped Out at Street Crossing
in Sunman, Ind.

Summer, Ind., June 16 (By A. P.)—Five persons, the entire family of Frank Whipple, 45-year-old farmer, lost their lives when their automobile was struck by a Big Four passenger train at a street crossing here last night. The dead are:

Frank Whipple; Mary Whipple, wife; Rosalia Whipple; 18; Melvin Whipple, 17; Wilson Whipple, 13.

Mrs. Whipple and her daughter died almost instantly. The father and the two sons died during the night. There were no witnesses to the accident and none of the victims regained consciousness to tell how it happened.

Lima, Ohio, June 16 (By A. P.)—Three persons were killed near here today when their automobile was struck by a train. The dead here have been identified as Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ehler, West Alexandria, Ohio, and Miss Cora Anna, New Paris, Ohio. It is thought the party were on their way to Ann Arbor, Mich., to attend the graduation of Ralph Ehler, a son, at the University of Michigan.

Second Wet Bill
Killed in Illinois

Springfield, Ill., June 16 (By A. P.)—Hope of wet to modify prohibition laws in this session of the Illinois General Assembly were definitely crushed today when by a vote of 32 to 15 the Senate rejected a resolution memorializing Congress to call a constitutional convention for the purpose of repealing the eighteenth amendment.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 16 (By A. P.)—Foreign Minister Briand of France, ill with an infection of the left eye, diagnosed as herpes zoster, or shingles, left here on the midday train for Paris where he is due to arrive tonight. He suffered neuralgic pains and some fever during the night.

Upon his arrival in Paris he will be placed in the hands of French specialists, who were telegraphed to meet the train. Physicians here urged him to return as soon as possible and to drop all diplomatic work for the present.

Reports that the French foreign minister's condition had grown worse could not be confirmed.

President Coolidge refuses to recognize the eight-hour day for Black Hills trout. Brother Green, of the A. F. of L., will need a look.

GEN. MITCHELL FIRES ANOTHER BROADSIDE

AT NAVY AIR POLICY

Nearly All Money Spent

Wasted, He Says.

URGES BIG CLEAN-UP OF CAPITAL BUREAUS

Accuses Officials of Spreading
"Bunk" Among People
Regarding Aviation.

Gen. William Mitchell, U. S. A., re-signed, who commanded America's overseas air forces in the World War, has proposed another broadside at the Navy yesterday. He declared that nearly all of the money spent on battleships is wasted, and accused Navy officials of depositing "bunk" in the public mind through to aviation.

The former "flying general" was aroused to issue his statement to The Washington Post yesterday by the remark of a Navy official who said Wednesday that Mitchell did know what he was talking about.

The controversy started when Gen. Mitchell scored the Navy for not having Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's monoplane ready when the latter tried to take off in Monday.

To substantiate the contention that the former "flying general" was aroused to issue his statement to The Washington Post yesterday by the remark of a Navy official who said Wednesday that Mitchell did know what he was talking about.

LINDBERGH'S EARLY MORNING DESCENT ON CITY SURPRISES

Avoided Crowded Field by Quick Flight to Obtain Famous Plane.

COLONEL REMAINS HERE FOR ONLY 25 MINUTES

Flier Has Breakfast in New York After Doing Air Stunts.

With much the same nonchalance that featured his flight over the Atlantic, Capt. A. L. Lindbergh landed for a mid-morning rest over which had been drawn a flying suit, hopped into Washington in a "wee small hours" of yesterday morning, changed from the Army Curtiss plane, in which he had landed, into his own, and then to his famed Spirit of St. Louis, and was back in New York in time for breakfast.

The colonel's trip to Washington was of the "business sort," he having been scheduled to speak here for a while until today, as a result, he has planned what would otherwise have been a crowded field both for his landing and takeoff, and left no room of his time to visit with his friends, and was disappointedly sleeping through the 25 minutes that he spent in the Capital.

Col. Lindbergh had been attending a benefit performance for the families of Nungesser and Col. at the Roxy Theatre, which showed little interest, as he decided he could not be longer separated from his plane. He motored to Mitchell Field, boarded a Curtiss pursuit plane, and, accompanied only by Capt. St. Clair Street, started for Washington. On the way, he met the plane he was using had no night flying lights, Capt. Street's plane preceded him to show the way.

While Lindbergh was en route to the city, it was noticed that the flood lights of the Spirit of St. Louis had been extinguished in accordance with custom. The brightly illuminated dome is one of the principal guides which flies at night in striking for the flying lights of Washington.

Lieut. Donald Clegg, officer of the day at Belling Field, noticed that the lights were out and immediately communicated with Carlton Thomas, acting lieutenant of the guard at the Capitol. Despite the fact that it was after the hour when the lights were supposed to be on, Thomas suggested that they be turned on again, so Lindbergh was able to fly into the city with the Capitol as a beacon.

Col. Lindbergh landed at the Anacostia Naval Air Station at 3:45 a. m., a minute earlier than he had planned. He went directly to the hangar, in which the Spirit of St. Louis was stored, tuned up the motor and 25 minutes after landing, the celebrated "wee" again was in the air.

Lieut. Cmdr. Charles W. Wick, commanding of the station, in a VE-9 plane, and Lieut. Comdr. A. C. Miles, in a U-1, with Capt. Street, flew back to New York with Lindbergh as his

CHECK FOR FLIGHT TO PARIS IS PRESENTED TO LINDBERGH

He said had contributed to the success of his Paris flight. He asked Donald Hall, designer of the Spirit of St. Louis, to arise for special recognition as "a member of the firm of We."

Before the dinner Col. Lindbergh settled his bill, having in his hand a check from the University of Wisconsin Alumni Association of New York. There he was made an honorary life member in the general alumni association of the university and presented with the medal of the Legion of Honor of the New York Police Department. The presentation, made by Sergt. Charles Steinert, was the second in the history of the department.

Misses Seeling Ball Game.

Col. Lindbergh had settled the tail-end of the ball game today by just a couple of put-outs after hurrying from Roosevelt Field for a surprise visit to the Yankee ball yard.

The New York team had trounced the Browns 10 to 1, and the players had entered the dressing room. Lindbergh met Jimmy Austin, coach of the hometown Browns, after his car whirled once around the playing field to the cheers of 12,000 fans just cheering for him. The colonel was marked by school children lined deep about the white route and cheering in enthusiastic treble as he passed.

At the end of the game, the awards were held at which the flier received a medal, his seventeenth, and then he was guest of honor at a Knights of Columbus luncheon.

In the afternoon he went to Roosevelt Field, over which he had hopped on his great adventure, and there he took part in ceremonies commemorating his feat. Theodore Roosevelt was master of ceremonies.

Escort to Dayton.

When Col. Lindbergh hops off tomorrow morning for St. Louis, two army observation planes, piloted by Lt. Leuta, Newton Longfellow and Stanley Umstead, will accompany him.

The aviator's party, which he had planned to have at the grandstand where Col. Jacob Buppert, owner of the Yankees, was presented to the flier.

The automobile hopped less than two minutes but that was time enough for the colonel to have time to get his coat and force the aviator to acknowledge their cheers by rising and waving at them. Then with motorcycle policemen clearing a path, the machine charged down the white route and out of the park again with thousands of fans in eager but futile pursuit.

Reunion of the partners designated by the flying pronoun "we" was accomplished today, but only at the last minute. The flier had planned to have a 500-mile journey through the dawn as the first activity of a day's program sufficient without that to wear out an ordinary man. The Lindberghs planned to have a 100-mile ride before he was through with his public appearances and started for a private dinner to which he had been asked to come before retiring. But he never reached that dinner.

Hurries Off to Field.

Apparently acting on the impulse of the moment, he suddenly directed that he should be taken to the stop on Broadway to Park Avenue, and an hour later he was in the air, flying a borrowed airplane and wearing a borrowed flying suit over his dinner clothes.

In an hour and 40 minutes he was at Belling Field, Washington, 240 miles away, an tuning up his beloved Spirit of St. Louis, his partner in the first flight to France. Passing barely a half hour with the lights he had turned on again, so Lindbergh was able to fly into the city with the Capitol as a beacon.

Great Crowd Cheers Return to Ostia, Rome's Ancient Seaport.

Rome, June 16 (By A. P.)—Commander Francisco de Pinedo came this afternoon from his 25,000-mile flight over four continents, bringing down his plane, Santa Maria, on the waters of the Tyrrhenian Sea, off Ostia, ancient seaport. His flight, from Barcelona, occupied six and a half hours, and he was at Ostia a few minutes after 5 o'clock.

De Pinedo was greeted on coming ashore first by Premier Mussolini, who took him to the Hotel Savoia, and an hour later he was in the air, flying a borrowed airplane and wearing a borrowed flying suit over his dinner clothes.

Annette and John were the winners in an essay contest for school children "Why I Admire Lindbergh," managed by the Brooklyn Eagle, the prize a seat in Lindbergh's car during the Brooklyn parade. With the ride over was over they were practically speechless. "Wonderful," they said together.

Annette wrote in her essay that she admired Lindbergh because "I know he is a hero to be born." In the dark at night, and he was so far away from his mother and every one, flying away up in the sky over the ocean; he's the bravest man, I think, that ever lived."

John said he admired the flier "because he is a pioneer of the air, worthy successor to that glorious band of daring men who discovered, explored and settled this great continent of America," said Col. Marcelo H. Howe, George Rogers Clark, Fremont and others, whose names adorn the pages of our history."

The graduating class of Notre Dame de Namur Academy, composed of 29 girls, was received into the school alumnae association at the annual reunion dinner last night in Rauscher's.

The address of welcome was given by Miss Bernadette L. Dore, president of the alumnae association.

Helene Duffy, reporter of the graduating class, responded. Miss Lucille Duffy served as toastmistress. Among those who spoke were the Rev. Michael J. Fitzpatrick, Miss Mary Fitzgerald, Mrs. Elizabeth Van Sant and Mrs. Margaret Talty. A musical program followed the dinner.

Chamberlin and Levine in Hanover and Bremen

Americans Fly to Former City; Await on Steamer for Wives' Arrival.

Bremen, Germany, June 16 (By A. P.)—Continuing their tour of Germany, Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, the American transatlantic fliers, arrived here today from Hanover. They were immediately escorted to the North German Lloyd's special train, which took them to Bremen. There they will meet their wives, due to arrive about 6 o'clock tomorrow morning on the train.

Both aviators were happy to have had an opportunity of taking a hand themselves in piloting a Lufthansa plane—Chamberlin from Frankfurt to Hanover, Levine from Hanover to Bremen. They arrived at 6 o'clock this evening at the Bremen airfield, which was packed with expectant fliers who gave the fliers a hearty welcome.

Senator H. S. Meyer, in behalf of the Bremen government, proclaimed that no city was a greater admirer of the fliers than Bremen. Directors Philip H. Gross and C. J. Stettinius extended a welcome on behalf of the Chamberlin company. The American vice consul, William G. Roll and H. L. Rippenger, represented Ambassador Schurman and Baron Leopold Plessen the German legation office.

The fliers drove through crowded streets to entrain for Bremenhaven. Nearly 100 invited guests were aboard, including Capt. Paul Koenig, commander of the submarine Deutschland.

Ross and his party followed for 10 minutes, so as to permit the man who had accomplished such a notable aviate to enjoy the ovation awaiting them in the Eternal City.

Commander De Pinedo will be received by the Pope, who, it is understood, will confer a decoration on him.

JAPAN AND BRITAIN PLAN TO LIMIT U.S. CRUISERS TO COAST

Will Insist on 6,500 Tons as Maximum; Naval Bases
Give Them Freedom.

RESTRICTIONS ON OTHER CRAFT ALSO SERIOUS

Tokyo May Demand America
Retain Status Quo in the Hawaiian Islands.

(Special Cable Dispatch)

June 16.—The American naval disarmament delegation, with all the chief representatives except Rear Admiral Frank Schenck already here, opened secretarial offices today at the Berges Hotel upon the arrival of Ambassador Hugh Gibson.

Ambassador Gibson will submit concerning the limitation of cruiser, destroyer and submarine categories of naval craft along lines similar to the Hughes proposals of a ratio for capital ships and aircraft carriers as is informed. America will submit its plan at Monday afternoon's official opening of the three-power conference called by President Coolidge in "the Gold Fish Bowl," as the gl-1 conservatory of the league secretariat is commonly called.

The Washington plan proposes the maintenance of the 10,000-ton class of cruisers with 8-inch guns as the maximum caliber, large destroyers and powerful,

long-radius submersibles.

Line Up Against U.S.

The correspondent is informed that Tokyo and London are in solid agreement to support the limitation of cruisers to 6,000 or 6,500 tons, with 8-inch guns the largest caliber and serious restrictions in the size, operation radius and armaments of destroyers and submarines.

Adoption of the Anglo-Japanese agreement would give these countries an enormous advantage over the United States, as it would make all the large units of their merchant marine potential cruisers. The construction of big-fast passenger lines enables them to carry 8-inch guns, but they are not strong enough to permit the mounting and firing of 8-inch guns.

The United States possesses only one potential cruiser, the Leviathan, while

Great Britain owns 20, while the United States has 100.

The adoption of the smaller 6,500-ton cruisers would result in mailing the United States' naval forces to the East and West coasts of America, as boats of that size are unable to carry fuel across the Atlantic and return across the Pacific, and the United States does not possess other naval bases, having relinquished the right to fortify or establish bases in the Pacific

at the Washington conference.

Britain's Hands Free.

Through the possession of bases

strung around the world, at Gibraltar,

Malta, Suez, Bombay, Colombo, Singaore, Hongkong, Shanghai, and elsewhere, Great Britain is able to operate 5,500-ton cruisers anywhere, and Japan's possessions in the Far East enables it to send cruiser squadrons anywhere in Asiatic waters.

The American delegation numbers

15, the English about 20 and the Janese about 60.

The League of Nations' forty-fifth council practically ended today with the departure of Foreign Minister

Aristide Briand, of France, who was forced to proceed to Paris owing to illness.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, British former secretary, failed utterly to line up the other great powers to break with Russia, or to adopt any coercive policy toward the Soviets. After five days of negotiations the British delegation was able only to induce the representatives of France, Italy, Japan,

Belgium, Germany and Poland to send mild notes to Moscow urging the Reds to exercise prudence owing to the serious international situation resulting from their air activities, illustrated by the diplomatic rupture with Great Britain. Japan's Demands.

Tokyo, June 16.—Should America

combine with England to bring pressure upon Japan to extend the battle-line to the coast of Manchuria, Japan demands as quid pro quo the maintenance of the status quo in the Hawaiian fortifications and garrison strength, and the abandonment of the Singapore base, which is the sole port of entry for the foreign office repeatedly has denied any intention on the part of Japan to raise the question at Geneva, the correspondent questioned. Prime Tanaka at Geneva until the American and British put their cards upon the table.

of determined defender of challenged American rights. The Mexicans considered him personally responsible for the Kellogg statement of two years ago, which demanded a change of policy on the part of Calles, and which placed Mexico "on trial before the world."

It was admitted by President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg that the Warren Memorandum advised that this advice was calculated to offset moves which
Mr. Sheffield was recommending.

It made little difference whether Mr.
Warren even mentioned Mexico in his talks with President Coolidge. The memorandum he was at that time writing was a particular interpretation in the Mexican press.

Naturally Mr. Sheffield was placed in an embarrassing position by these Mexican maneuvers.

Recent political developments in the United States are also said to have added to Mr. Sheffield's discomfiture.

The ambassador, who was identified with New York politics before assuming his diplomatic duties, was a close friend of Senator Wadsworth, of Connecticut.

He was defeated at the last senatorial

PETTING NOT WRONG, BUT WASTES TIME, CHURCH GROUP TOLD

Episcopal Congress Hears Youth Defended for Their Moral Standards.

PROTESTANTISM DEAD AS DODO, SAYS GUTHRIE

Can't Shoot Christianity Into People With Bullets or Dogmas, He Holds.

San Francisco, June 16 (By A. P.)—Delegates to the congress of the Episcopal Church in America declined to comment today on the statement by Dr. William G. Guthrie, rector of St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, New York, last night, that New Testament writers did not understand their subject, Christ.

Nor would the delegates comment on Dr. Guthrie's denunciation of foreign missions, which he declared, "you can't shoot Christianity into the people of the Orient either with bullets or dogmas."

The Rev. Henry Lewis, Ann Arbor, Mich., rector, who stirred the congress with a declaration in favor of "companionate marriages" with no children, supplemented his remarks with the assertion that through them there be petting, he said, "there is nothing wrong with petting—except that it is a waste of time."

"The worst thing about petting," said Rev. Lewis, "is that it leads to promiscuity. Moralists hold that petting leads to intimate relations. Perhaps, but only to a small degree."

Education is Called Cure.

"The cure for petting," Education. You can't cure youth by prohibition. Most of the problems of the church and society are sins."

"The church should not try to legislate morals. Rather, by sympathetic discussion of problems can the solution be reached."

"Can you blame youth for its moral standards? They are the same as the rest of us. They are not trying to do the same thing?" When you see men and women who should know better violating the moral code, use the subterfuge of divorce to gratify moral shortcomings.

"Most of the marriages are the result of spiritual infatuation," he said, "and at the end of two years an unfortunate couple realize this—too late, if they are married and have children."

"There is nothing wrong, nothing nasty about sex love in itself. It brings misery when it's not babies born of it. Better to satisfy such an infatuation with 'companionate union' than to seek refuge in promiscuity, equally bad for men and women."

Bishops Are Awake

Speakers today include the Rt. Rev. Arthur W. Moulton, D.D., bishop of Utah; the Rev. Arthur Rogers, D.D., Evanston, Ill.; the Rt. Rev. Nathaniel S. Thomas, D.D., bishop of Wyoming, and the Rt. Rev. Edward S. White, of St. Louis.

Their discussions concerned the de-

When the doctors found it was not appendicitis, knowing me personally, they said it must be gall or cholelithiasis, as I am in the California hospital where they are going to relieve me of surplus gall, much to the politicians' delight. greet to which the Episcopal Church is to be Catholic and Protestant.

Denominationalism, foreign missions and other things orthodox were given some vigorous treatment by Mr. Guthrie.

"Protestantism," he said, "is as dead as the dodo. It has to paint itself red to look interesting. Christianity is not dead, but it's been given a bit of mystery, a bit of romance."

"Egyptian and Roman. We are not primitive. Christianity must recover Jesus.

"I don't believe in foreign missions. I don't expect you to agree with me. I don't want people to agree with me.

Christians Held Unchristian.

"We Christians are about as unchristian as any people on earth. If we are to be Christians, we must be profoundly humble. You may ask if I believe in Christianity. That depends upon what you mean by Christianity.

"If you mean the reincarnation of the spirit, then I believe in it. God, my answer is yes. But if you mean the scholasticism of the year 250 A.D. or the formalism of the Nicene creed, my answer is no. God never intended anything like that."

"The New Testament was written by a lot of chumps who were thick in the head. They were thickheads, but their thickness served Christ, for he was a genius and knew how to make them serve."

"If we continue to behave as we do behave, I don't see any reason why Chinese or any other foreign race should adopt Christianity."

Struck Above Heart, Ball Player Is Killed

New Castle, Pa., June 16 (By A. P.)—Catching in a ball game without wearing a chest protector resulted in the death of Charles Morrow, 22.

Morrow was struck just above the heart by a foul ball from the bat of an opposing player in a twilight game here last night. Death was reported almost instantaneous.

NEW FLOOD COVERING REPLANTED REGIONS

Rising Mississippi Menaces Greenville Levee; More Refugees in Camps.

Vicksburg, Miss., June 16 (By A. P.)—Water was lapping the top of the protection levee here yesterday and residents feared that should further rains occur or the Mississippi River continue to rise the levee would go out.

This information was received here in a telephone message this morning at the Vicksburg Standard. The Mississippi river at Greenville rose a tenth of a foot Wednesday and the backwater at Greenville went up .08 in the past 24 hours.

Fifty per cent of the cotton planted on land which was inundated by the previous flood already is under water again and the water is rising rapidly. The levee and the level rapidly is rising in Bolivar, Sunflower, Washington, Humphreys, Sharkey and Issaquena Counties, although stationary in Yazoo and Warren Counties.

Camp populations in Sunflower and Washington Counties were reported somewhat increased. Red Cross authorities said that Mexicans were the only refugees leaving the delta in any great numbers.

Red Cross authorities also said that mosquitoes were adding to the seriousness of the situation.

Flood Relief Plays To Be Given Tonight

Two plays will be given tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the Belasco Theater for the benefit of the Mississippi Valley flood relief, under auspices of the Women's City Club. Kurt Hettzel will lead the orchestra.

The City Club dramatic section, Mrs. Patrick Gallagher, chairman, will present "Piney Woods" in the Belasco under the direction of Edith Sears. The cast includes A. M. Pooshtan, Gertrude E. Walter, Maybelle Raymond, Thelma Schmitt, Nadine Lane Gallagher, Alice J. Whitcomb, Edith Oriani and Clagett Clark. "The Masks," the Central High School drama group, will present "Green Stockings" at 8:30 p.m. A. E. W. Mason, under the direction of Miss Sybil Baker, head of the District Community Centers, with the following cast: Nell Childs, Erma Steiger, Ivy Stevens, Andrew Allison, Barbara Stratton, Russell Graham, William E. Bradley, Richard Bourdon, Harry Wender, Leland Cole, Marian MacDaniel and Robert Miller.

Prize to Countess de Chambrun.

Paris, June 16 (By A. P.)—The French Academy today awarded the "Pecin Prize" to the Countess Jacqueline de Chambrun, wife of Gen. de Chambrun, and sister of Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the United States House of Representatives. The prize was in recognition of her study of Shakespeare.

IN THE BLACK HILLS.

President Coolidge is now snugly ensconced in his lodge in the forest. After the fitful fever of overland receptions he rests well in the solemn seclusion of the Black Hills. Like stout-hearted Louis Wetzel, he finds the wilderness behind him and the wilderness before. Wild feuds and battles are commemorated by blood-curdling names of peaks and streams, and the cry of the red man seems to echo across the barrens.

To a mind both contemplative and adventurous, like that of Mr. Coolidge, there must be an irresistible lure in the nomenclature of the Black Hills region. Before 8 o'clock he was out and exploring Squaw Creek, which keeps up a perpetual chatter not far from the lodge. Before him lay the boundless West—Black Thunder Creek, Wild Cat Creek, Lodge Pole Creek, and scores of others, in the midst of mountains famous for battle and gold. Not far to the southward is Wind Cave—what a splendid place for the next national convention! To the north are Sun Dance, Belle Fourche, and Leadville. Eastward for many a league the prairies roll and tumble like the sea.

After this vacation the Black Hills will treasure new legends, superimposed upon the folklore of Indians and plainsmen and Custer's men. The region will have been the residence and playground of a President of the United States, the Great White Father himself, from the mysterious East. For many years the inhabitants of the Black Hills will take delight in regaling the traveler with anecdotes of the time when the President was a Black Hills man, fishing, tramping, and exploring those romantic wilds. No doubt the Pine Ridge and Cheyenne reservations will miss some of their chieftains, who will make their way over to the lodge to see the big chief from Washington. He will be made a member of the tribes.

If politicians and job-chasers will not imitate the red men in seeking out the President all will be well, and he will have a rest. Of course, a few choice specimens will get through the barriers, and from time to time officials must go in and report necessary and pressing affairs. But it will not be easy. Mr. Coolidge has chosen his retreat well. He can have repose whenever he desires it, and for the sake of his health and reserve strength the country hopes that he will confine his conferences mostly to the natives.

NATIONAL GUESTS.

The failure of Congress to provide a fund with which the District Commissioners can entertain guests of the National Capital made it necessary for private citizens to provide for the expenses incident to the reception to Col. Lindbergh. The reception was essentially a national affair, and officers of the Government were the chief participants.

New York financed the reception to Lindbergh by appropriating $50,000 from the city treasury. But the District Commissioners have no power to appropriate money, and apparently the State Department did not feel empowered to allow any of its funds for the purpose.

The dignity of a national reception would be enhanced by eliminating from the proceedings a public call upon private citizens for contributions to the entertainment fund.

DEMSEY WOULD "COME BACK."

Otherwise serious and sedate citizens of the United States have the habit of becoming somewhat exuberant at the approach of a heavyweight prize fight of moment. Physical combat between big men, even now when it has become a highly specialized and profitable business, exercises a certain fascination with mass appeal. Less than a year ago the condition of Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney was of more importance to the average citizen than his own bank balance, and the thoughts of the Nation revolved about the meeting of these two pugilists in Philadelphia.

Popular judgment suffered an exceedingly rude shock that night, for the rise of a new champion was not generally expected. Many partisans are not yet convinced that the result was a true one, hence their interest in the announcement that Dempsey will attempt a "comeback" toward the latter part of next month. Nothing serves to emphasize the exaltation of the prize ring more than the fact that the fallen idol will make money out of his attempt to "come back," even if the attempt should fail. It is not necessary for him to make any sacrifice to the public. It will foot the bill for a spectacle which may give him the opportunity to meet Tunney again.

There seems but slight prospect that Dempsey will ever again be the heavyweight champion. Years of hard and idleness worked against him in Philadelphia as much as the skill of his opponent. The history of the prize ring records many efforts on the part of fighters to regain their lost laurels, but few successful ones. The result is almost a foregone conclusion. The majority of those who contribute their share to what it is anticipated will be a million dollar "gate" will be convinced of the futility of the former champion's gesture before and after the event, but such is the sports appetite of today that curiosity will conquer scepticism. Financially, the public will do its share to help the "comeback."

DEALING WITH THE SOVIET.

The foreign ministers now assembled at Geneva have decided not to give a concerted warning to Soviet Russia to desist from communist propaganda. Foreign Minister Zalewski, of Poland, expressed the fear to his colleagues that if the powers should make a collective gesture against Russia the Soviet would take advantage of the fact to stir up national feeling by making the Russians believe that their country was in danger. The result would probably be a repetition of the events of 1919 and 1920, when the Russians, without distinction of politics, united to drive out foreign forces. M. Zalewski fears that an attack upon Poland would follow.

It has been agreed that Foreign Minister Stresemann, of Germany, shall intimate in a friendly way to Foreign Minister Tchitcherin, of Russia, that the activities of the Third International are highly offensive to Europe and damaging to the prestige and safety of the Soviet. He may go even further, by giving notice that the powers reserve the right to take defensive measures against the Third International without bringing any accusation against the Soviet Government.

The situation is ticklish indeed when the great powers of Europe are driven to the expedient of splitting hairs in dealing with the Soviet. The Soviet and the Third International are as identical as Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. The powers accept the Soviet's own statement that the Third International is not controlled by the Soviet, but both sides know that the statement is not true. Peace can not be maintained by resting upon this fiction. It can exist only if the Soviet quits its attempt to destroy other governments. But the Soviet can not quit and retain its grip at home, because the radicals are in the saddle and are resuming the terroristic tactics that have kept them in power since 1917. The moderates in Russia have no chance to reach an accommodation with Europe.

A revolution in Russia that will throw off the radical communists or a war between Poland and Russia, involving Europe, seems to be imminent. The probabilities indicate war, deliberately provoked by the Moscow regime in order to keep itself in power.

CHAIN BRIDGE.

Apprehension is felt by local and Virginia authorities over the condition of the south abutment of Chain Bridge. Maj. Covell, assistant to the Engineer Commissioner, has pointed out the fact that it has become weakened to such an extent that a heavily loaded motor truck, striking it suddenly and at a high rate of speed, might cause it to collapse. As a precautionary measure a "stop" sign has been placed about 60 feet from the bridge, ordering drivers to bring their vehicles to a full stop, to approach the bridge carefully, and to cross it slowly. It is stated that the danger is not sufficiently grave at present to warrant closing the bridge to all traffic, provided the Virginia authorities will make certain that the stop and caution warning is obeyed.

There seems to be little excuse for permitting the use of any bridge within or contiguous to the District if there is any danger whatsoever that it can not carry even the heaviest vehicle. Thousands would be seriously inconvenienced, however, if the span should be closed, and with no funds available with which to replace the structure the posting of guards seems to be the only possible step for the time being.

Chain Bridge needs replacement. The volume of traffic it bears, together with the fact that no satisfactory detour is available, fully justifies the expense of a new structure. The need should be anticipated now, and immediate demands should be made for the necessary appropriations.

WIDE AND SHADED STREETS.

The Commission of Fine Arts has urged the Park and Planning Commission to begin immediately a study of the tree conservation problem in the District of Columbia. Massachusetts Avenue was pointed out particularly as a street in the transition stage, upon which experiments might be performed looking toward the creation of a model for other highways of Washington.

The tree problem has become increasingly acute with the need for wider streets. The end of the street widening program is not in sight, nor, in all probability, will it ever be. Modern traffic has to be moved quickly and in bulk, and additional footage added to the width of present highways is the only solution.

Trees must be sacrificed in the process, however, and so far the replanting program has been woefully inadequate.

The problem should be studied as one affecting the entire community, and there could be no better body for this purpose than the Park and Planning Commission. It is to be hoped that it will act upon the suggestion, and evolve a plan to assure wide and amply shaded streets for the Washington of the future.

AIR MAILS AND AIR PORTS.

On July 18 the Postoffice Department will open bids for air-mail service between Cleveland and Albany, via Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse and Schenectady. On the same day bids for a like service between Cleveland and Louisville, through Akron, Columbus, Cincinnati and other Ohio cities will also be received. Bids for the latter route are made necessary through the failure of the company to which the contract was originally awarded to comply with the requirements of the department. At present the department does not contemplate the establishment of an air route either South or East of Albany, because the train facilities between that city and New York and Boston are such that air mail from as far West as Cleveland can be dispatched by train from Albany with the assurances of delivery at destination without loss of time.

The remarkable air journey of Col. Charles Lindbergh has stimulated interest in the air mails to a greater extent than ever before. His speech at the reception tendered him by the National Press Club on the night of his arrival here, in which he urged that air ports should be established in every city of the United States, has resulted in the sending of a letter by the Press Club to the United States Chamber of Commerce in which that organization is urged to recommend to its constituent bodies that such aviation fields could very appropriately at the same time be made soldier memorials, similar to the memorial park which President Coolidge dedicated at Hammon, Ind., on Tuesday.

Some of the cities that expect to benefit by the inauguration of air-mail routes have already established such landing fields. One of these is Buffalo, which has expended more than a million dollars in the preparation of an air port that is an attractive addition to its system of parks. Rochester is another pioneer in the field, while the chambers of commerce or boards of trade in each of the others to be served by air mail have given assurance that their fields will be ready by the time the contractor is prepared for business.

If Washington is not to be left outside the air-mail route it will be necessary to prepare at once for the coming of the followers of Col. Lindbergh.

PAYING WAR DEBTS.

On June 15 thirteen foreign governments paid $88,998,931 on account of their indebtedness to the United States arising out of the war. The payments were made under the terms of the several agreements consummated by the World War Debt Commission.

Great Britain made its ninth payment of semiannual interest on its funded debt under the agreement of February 28, 1923. This payment amounted to $67,575,000, and was made by the surrender to the Treasury of that amount of United States obligations with interest. The public debt of the United States was reduced that much.

France paid a lump sum of $10,000,000, which was credited to the original demand obligations given by France for cash advanced under the Liberty Loan acts. This payment by France was accepted without prejudice to the Mellon-Berenger agreement.

Belgium's payment amounted to $3,100,000, Czechoslovakia's, $1,500,000, and Poland's $1,000,000. Payments of Estonia, Finland, Hungary, Lithuania, Roumania, Yugoslavia and Latvia made up the balance in sums less than a million dollars each, covering both interest and principal.

During this fiscal year the Treasury has received from foreign governments approximately $206,079,000 in principal and interest under war debt agreements. This has been applied to the public debt of the United States, much of the payment being in United States obligations.

All talk of reopening, readjusting or canceling these war debts due the United States appears to have ceased since Secretary Mellon's recent reply to the President of Princeton University and others. The Treasury Department has recently issued a compilation of official documents and information relating to the war debt situation, in which communications between representatives of the leading countries of Europe and the United States concerning war loans are printed, proving that at no period between 1917 and 1920 was there any thought of an American subsidy or gift to European countries from the United States.

BRITISH WOMEN'S RIGHTS.

The struggle for sex equality in England does not follow a smooth road. The extension of suffrage to all women over 21 was a decided triumph, but the effort to throw the gates of the Oxford colleges wide open to them has met with a strong rebuff. The dons of the venerable institutions of learning have just decided that an admixture greater than one woman student to every four men would not be advantageous.

Undoubtedly the greatest handicap to English women, in their efforts to obtain entrance on an equal footing to places hitherto reserved for men, is tradition. The "die hard" type is not limited to politics. There are many Englishmen who object seriously and strenuously to changes in customs and manners that have the weight of the centuries behind them. The fact that a thing was not done in the days of Good Queen Bess is reason enough to obey.

Chain Bridge needs replacement. The volume of traffic it bears, together with the fact that no satisfactory detour is available, fully justifies the expense of a new structure. The need should be anticipated now, and immediate demands should be made for the necessary appropriations.

SCIENTIFIC FARMING.

Sir John Russell, head of the British experimental station at Rothamsted, England, recently told Department of Agriculture employees that the day of agricultural catastrophes, such as wholesale crop failures with resultant famine, probably has gone forever. The advance of the science of farming, particularly studies of the effect of various fertilizers, has brought this about. Before long the mathematician will be able to step in and devise set of actuarial statistics that will enable insurance companies to write insurance on crops, and even markets, with no more risk than is at present involved in life insurance.

Famine, terror of the world since biblical days, is not known to the United States. Hunger exists, of course, in isolated cases, but famine in which is involved a considerable area has never struck the country. Today, the system of world transportation is good insurance against lack of food, for the products of areas untouched by blight, drought or flood can be shipped where they are most needed. Exemplifying this, one need only recollect the shipments of food consigned by the United States to starving Armenia.

The problem should be studied as one affecting the entire community, and there could be no better body for this purpose than the Park and Planning Commission. It is to be hoped that it will act upon the suggestion, and evolve a plan to assure wide and amply shaded streets for the Washington of the future.

ENGINEER BROTHERHOOD SPLITS WITH FIREMEN

Abrogation of Working Pact
May Cause Friction, Is Leaders' Admission.

NEW TERMS ARE SOUGHT

Cleveland, Ohio, June 16 (By A. P.)—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen have abrogated their working agreement which has been in effect for fifteen years, the triennial convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers decided today.

The action severs all coordinate action of the two organizations and leaders pointed out there is possibility for friction which marked relations of the two organizations prior to 1913. Negotiations will get under way at once, leaders said, for the definite wiping out of all agreements through which wage negotiations and working agreements by the two organizations were carried on with the railroads.

Decided to abandon the agreement, said H. E. Willis, Washington assistant grand chief engineer of the engineers, was due to terms of the pact covering mileage to be made by members.

Friction between the two organizations was blamed on the fact that when the two organizations failed to act jointly in a wage movement with railroads. D. B. Robertson, head of the

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND THE CHARACTERS.

Christine, fair, pretty, popular, just 18, is invited to the commencement exercises of her University by the inseparable friends of her childhood, two of whom are in love with her. They are:

Harvey Blanton, handsome, brilliant, agreeable, and his chum and roommate.

Lewis Hayes, grave, dependable, doggedly determined to make his mark in the field of chemical experimentation.

Harvey proposes to her and is accepted, so Lewis goes on without telling her he loves her, on the eve of the wedding of Christine and Harvey. A year later their son is born.

Lewis has returned to town, meanwhile, and is working for the firm which employs Harvey. He tells Harvey he has discovered a chemical formula of great industrial value. Harvey undertakes to get it, while, the president of the company, it is agreed, will do the same.

Soon after the birth of the second child, Harvey announces that he has been taken into the firm following his discovery of a formula for making rubber. Lewis, meanwhile, has lost his job, his project being a failure, and he goes away.

With Harvey's product, the blithous build a beautiful home. Christine has every luxury, but she is happy only with her children. She finds that Harvey's friends are strangers to her.

A chance meeting with Lewis reveals to her that the old friendship between him and Harvey has been restored.

A friend, who is disturbed by Christine's complete absorption in her children, persuades her to borden her interests. Christine's first venture is to publish a little book of fairy tales.

Then she learns that Harvey is going a fast pace. In his pocket she finds a love letter.

She goes to her parents, but they refuse to reveal the name of the author.

So she takes her children and goes to New York to try to earn a living. She makes her home with a middle-aged cousin, Anna Morrison.

After weeks of effort, she gets a job as a dancer in a cheap saloon. Her funds are exhausted and she has to beg.

Her first venture is a proposal of marriage from the proprietor. Then she meets Lewis quite by accident.

Their friendship is resumed, since he does not hold enmity against either her or Harvey for the theft of the idea.

Christine writes a magazine series, called "Cabinet Sketches," and succeeds in selling them.

But bad luck follows. Cousin Anna is called away from New York, and Lewis is called away to a new home. Lewis proves his friendship by helping her in every way she will permit.

Harvey is killed in an automobile accident and leaves nothing but debts.

Christine falls ill and is in a hospital for weeks.

But her cabaret job and her magazine work are gone when Christine recovers, and she is obliged to accept financial help from Lewis.

With the money, she marries him and consents, first out of gratitude, second because she hopes to be the wife of the wealthy Harvey.

She becomes a second-class destination. But the marriage ceremony is hardly over when she realizes that she can never be with him again.

Her life is a misery, and she finds work on the staff of a magazine, but she soon loses it, due to the jealousy of her superior.

At the same time, she learns that her son has a weak heart. A series of jobs finally gives her a break, and she finds work again. There she meets Nina Mary, and is introduced to a new set. It includes Henry Sanford, a millionaire who is known as a backer of theatrical enterprises. He takes a family to her.

CHAPTER XL.

Unmasked.

ANFORD'S limousine called for Christine. It bore her swiftly to the avenue. The warmth and fragrance of it lulled her. She wore her one and only simple little evening gown, and she clutched the precious manuscript of her play.

Sanford's apartment was in the fifteenth, not far from the playhouse. A series of porters, a brocade and gold armchair, from the car. A page conducted her to the top floor which Sanford occupied in its entirety. A correct butler admitted her, and at last firmly closed the door. A maid who led her to a lofty room furnished in empire style. There were mirrors everywhere. Christine saw herself as a slim little figure in a cheap black evening gown.

"It had a high-necked dress and long sleeves and a frilled apron. I'd still be a little better dressed than the maid," she thought.

A modest string of artificial pearls

Somehow She Eluded Him.

and an artificial orchid, salvaged from the specialty shop for which she wrote advertising copy, were the only decorations in the room—an insolent, immature figure with sleepy, heavy-lidded eyes. He smoked a cigarette in a long amber holder.

Christine ran eagerly. Years afterward she had laid aside her wrap, she was conducted to a mammoth room where Sanford waited for her. She had a confused impression of a fire, of a candle, of a man in a suit of shining armor and diamond-protected shields; of soft carpets that brushed her footsteps; of a refectory table and carved chairs.

The butler brought cocktails. She rarely tasted hers. Late, Sanford asked her for not drinking it.

"I'll smother it up," he said, and turned to the shaker on its silver tray.

She lifted the glass to her lips, and when his back was turned, tossed its contents over her shoulder into a fern.

"I hope it won't kill the poor things," she thought.

When dinner was announced, she was conducted into another splendid room. There were candles on the long table and a footed crystal bowl. A maid and a footman served the meal.

She had never tasted such food. With the fish came a golden wine that seeped through her veins and warmed her to the finger tips. Some instinct warned her that she could never be with him again.

"The play is rotten, but the woman's good," he said.

"Such a little Puritan!" smiled Sanford.

"You're not been so careful when we have dined in restaurants."

"This wine is different," she protested.

MOST ACTIVE STOCKS REACT AFTER GAINING

Some Shares Retain Top Prices in Late Wave of Profit Taking.

CALL FUNDS 4 PER CENT

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, June 16.—Buying of an impressive character in early trading today carried prices of stocks to levels higher than those prevailing when Tuesday's break started and established a lot of new high records, but the rapidity and extent of the recovery brought out extensive profit taking in the last hour and most active shares receded from the best levels of the day. Trading was more active than yesterday, the turnover being slightly under 2,400,000 shares.

Gold prices, which opened at 4½ per cent and later dropped to 4 per cent with outside funds plentiful at 3½.

Carrier stocks, a group gave a good account of themselves in the early trading, but many records were broken, the most prominent among them being a result of the late selling movement. Rock Island and St. Louis Southwestern started the ball rolling upward by snapping into new high ground, the latter advancing 9½ per cent. Rock Island gained 1½. Nine stocks receded a new high for the year, but lost its gains subsequently and closed lower. New York Central went the same route.

Consistently strong stocks in the group included the Baltimore & Ohio, Denver & Rio Grande preferred, Missouri, Kansas & Texas, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Chesapeake Corporation, Kansas City Southern, New Haven, New York, Ontario & Western, N. W. Norfolk Southern, Texas & Pacific and others, all gains among them extending to 4 points.

Cross currents in industrials left that group at the close showing both broad gains and substantial losses with the former, however, considerably more numerous. The net appreciations ranged from 1 to 16 points. General Motors surged forward under active demand to within a small fraction of its previous record high, held its gains well through the late selling movement, closed 5½ points above the record for the day.

Chrysler, Hudson, Dodge, Mack, Willys Overland, Studebaker and others closed in the plus column after most of them had eased off substantially from their early highs. Fruehauf, a new record over, trading in Yellow Truck B shares was most active in General Motors, 154,200 shares changing hands and a new high being established at 32½. The stock closed up 3½ net.

United States Steel held firmly in moderate trading, finishing the day a gainer by 1 point. Eastman Kodak, under investment accumulation, was boosted into new high territory at 153, which was 7½ points up. Federal Mining gained 15 points. Many other new tops were made by industrials and speculative stocks.

Substantial advances were made by Detroit Edison, International Harvester, American Sumatra Tobacco, Baldwin-Dupont, Wards Baking issues, U. S. Steel, and others—Manhattan Transit and many others.

Weakness developed in American Linseed, preferred, Burns Bros. stocks, Foundation and both common and preferred of U. S. Rubber. These stocks, however, not being considered major indicators failed to unsettle others. Lehigh Valley sank abruptly on a few sales in the afternoon, after early firmness.

Sterling eased in the foreign exchange market, Spanish pesetas declined points. Norwegian fell 2 points and French francs went off a shade, while Dutch rates firmed, cables reaching a new high for the year.

Easy Funds Aid Buying of High Grade Bonds

Irregularity Again Marks Trading Generally; Convertibles Recovering.

Foreign Group is Mixed

New York, June 16 (By the Associated Press).—Irregularity again ran through the bond market today, but prices on the whole appeared to have rather better support than they have received in some recent sessions. High grade issues attracted a greater volume of buying, partly because of an abundance of money at easy rates. This ease is expected to continue for a few days, until the market has returned to the banks for clearance.

Convertible issues continued to recover from the slump at the beginning of the week. Erie D 4s were in large demand and advanced 1½ points. Internationals, which had been held close to yesterday's final figure.

Among the railway issues sought by buyers were such securities as Canadian Pacific 4½s and a few others.

None of the Western second 5s inclined to heaviness.

Industrials and public utilities were relatively inactive, but firm, the only change of note being in Third Avenue Adjustment 6s, which moved up about a point.

Secretary Mellon's latest announcement, regarding second Liberty bonds had little effect on the Government list. Holders of these bonds were notified that they may sell them, under the terms of the Government, in the event they do not care to change them for the new Treasury 3½s. Second Liberties were active at slightly easing prices, while the fourth Liberties were fractionally higher.

Foreign issues were quiet in tone. City of Milan 5s continued to show gradual decline, and Polish 8s were offered in fairly large amounts.

Tomorrow's offerings include $12,000,000 Iowa Public Service Co. first mortgage 6s, priced to yield 5.18 per cent, and $4,000,000 Republic of Estonia 7s, to be marketed on a 7.40 per cent basis.

New York Cotton.

New York, June 16 (By A. P.).—Rallies from an early decline in the cotton market today were not fully maintained, but the market closed steady at 17.21. October closed at 17.01, the general market closing steady at a net decline of 4 to 8 points.

The market was steady at an advance of 3 points to a decline of 2 points, with the nearer months of July and August showing a slight advance of Liverpool to meet fully the loss of advance of the previous day seen to bring in some selling, however, and prices were well supported, while some selling for a reaction was also reported after the advance of the previous day.

July declined to 16.58 and December to 17.16, net losses of about 12 to 13 points, which seemed to be a reversal of trade, but just now the market turned firm during midday.

The market for cotton in the South seemed to increase in apprehension of bull vein damage and possible reduction during the day, said the information of most of the exchanges. The situation in this respect, combined with the reappearance of trade, again on the end of the day, appeared to promote covering, and for a time the market showed considerable firmness, but turned to a decline of 4 to 5 points.

The situation in this respect, combined with the reappearance of trade, again on the end of the day, appeared to promote covering, and for a time the market showed considerable firmness, but turned to a decline of 4 to 5 points.

The market was steady at an advance of 3 points to a decline of 2 points, with the nearer months of July and August showing a slight advance of Liverpool to meet fully the loss of advance of the previous day seen to bring in some selling, however, and prices were well supported, while some selling for a reaction was also reported after the advance of the previous day.

July declined to 16.58 and December to 17.16, net losses of about 12 to 13 points, which seemed to be a reversal of trade, but just now the market turned firm during midday.

The market for cotton in the South seemed to increase in apprehension of bull vein damage and possible reduction during the day, said the information of most of the exchanges. THE RADIO TRADE SHOW IN CHICAGO

Apparatus Displayed Reveals Little Change in Year, Executive Declares.

WRC FEATURES MUSIC

Dealers, jobbers, manufacturers and manufacturers' agents are present more than 8,000 strong at the annual Radio Manufacturers' Association Trade Show in Chicago, which opened Monday and runs tonight. Four full floors of the hotel were turned over to manufacturers for demonstration of radio sets and appliances.

"Radio set owners who purchased receiving sets last fall have little to report," a prominent radio trade executive said after a tour of the exhibits within the 478 booths and the demonstration rooms, where another hundred manufacturers were showing their merchandise to the trade. "Radio apparatus shown at this exposition offers little in design or construction that was shown at the New York and Chicago shows last year, or the receivers and apparatus that are now being sold to the public in increasing volume as the Federal Radio Commission clears up the situation and makes radio reception possible."

"Electrified models of a number of standard radio receiving sets are offered," he continued. "Following the trend of the past year, but more in the direction of the revolution in design of sets that have marked previous exhibitions are noted in that the first exclusively radio trade show ever held."

The opening program of the new Cities Service Sales Orchestra of 30 pieces under the direction of Rosario Bourdon. Together with the Cities Service Male Chorus will be broadcast direct from Chamber Music Hall of Carnegie Hall at 7 o'clock tonight over WRC. This is a continuation of the winter series of Goldman Band concerts.

A new feature, to be known as the Paramount Concert Series, featuring soloists and orchestra, will be heard through WRC at 8 o'clock tonight, and every other Friday night during the summer months.

Two local features, the W. E. & A. Quartet, which gives a request program every Saturday night on the Local Cities Service Music will be heard tonight at 8:30 and 9 o'clock.

The Palais d'Or and Greenwich Village Inn Orchestras will furnish dance music from 10 to 11 o'clock, at which the station signs off for the evening.

The Story Instrumental Trio will be heard at 4 o'clock in the regular afternoon program from WRC. Other soloists will be Jack Cohen, pianist; Ethel Bee, soprano, and the Waldorf Astoria dinner music.

Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, and frequently mentioned as a presidential material, will be heard over WMAQ at 8 o'clock tonight, when he speaks in the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago, on the campaign which includes the new $100,000 McKinlock campus of Northwestern University.

The McKinlock campus is a new development on which is grouped the professional schools of the university, which has not yet had an opportunity to review it, the broadcast will be of interest to many hundreds of Northwestern graduates scattered throughout the United States.

The "Opry House Tonight" feature of WABC, which will be broadcast at 9:30 o'clock, deals with Cuba in the "Opry House Tonight" feature of WABC and the title of the melodrama is "Under the Flag." Diamond thieves, smugglers, spies, treachery, murder, killing, escapes, and romance, including real hair-raising bit of material for microphone consumption.

Songs of the sea may be enjoyed by the radio audiences of WJZ and blue network stations which broadcast 24 hours at 7:30 o'clock. The musical trip will be in command of "Capt. Charles Harrison, tenor, and Helen Clark, contralto, will be first mate in the crew, which doubles in brass, strings and other instruments, will be seen in the broadcast of "Moby" Joe Seven.

KOA at Denver advises its listeners to look up the cat and chain the dog tonight because that station will broadcast a case of wild animals and re-enactments with regret and embarrassment that several indignant radio listeners were missing costly sets immediately after a similar broadcast last year. Guy C. Caldwell, naturalist and guide in Rocky Mountain National Park, will give a talk on the question of a coyote, a bear, wolf and mountain lion, as well as the songs of native birds.

Music from the annual Los Gatos pageant, to be held in that city next week, will be heard when the Richards Club of Chicago presents a $5.00 radio broadcast a program from KFO at 11 o'clock our time. Each year the colorful days of early California—the days of the Spanish dons and señoritas—are revived in the form of a brilliant pageant, held outdoors at Los Gatos, Calif. This year's performance will have the title "La Primavera" and will depict an old California romance. Taking part in the Los Gatos pageants every year are some of our prominent writers, including Kathleen Norris, Charles G. Norris and Wilbur Hall.

WASHINGTON EXCHANGE PRICES REMAIN STRONG

Potomac Power Preferred and Street Railway Shares
Dominate Market.

NEW SECURITIES OFFERED

By F. W. PATTERSON.

Potomac Electric Power $5 preferred and the street railway shares dominated the trading yesterday on the Washington Stock Exchange in a market ruled by strong prices.

The new Potomac Power shares began the day at 101 1/2, the close on Wednesday, with one lot of 110 shares moving, this level was maintained through to close on further sales involving 41 shares. The 10 per cent stock came out in a small lot and sold firm at 108 1/2. Washington Railways & Electric preferred was unchanged and sold to the extent of 40 shares at 91 1/2. Closing bid was 91 1/2 while the asking price was 92 1/2. The common in this class has been little trading for many months, sold at 235 on a 10-share turnover. It is not better than has preceding sale. Closing bid was 240. Capital Traction was strong and selling dividend emerged hands at 103 1/2.

Despite the fact that bid prices throughout the bank line were strong, but four bank stocks were active. Commercial National had a gain of 20 to 26 1/2, 10-share sold. Union Trust Co. was firm at 200. Riggs National Bank sold to the extent of 10 shares at 450, while North Capitol Savings Bank had a gain of 10 to 10 1/2. Washington Gas Co. sold at 101 1/2, while the 10 shares of its 10 per cent stock on Friday, Potomac Gas shares were firm at 109 1/2.

Washington Railways & Electric led the bond trading and sold at 80 1/2. Capital Tracing had a gain of 20 to 26 1/2 and 10-share sold. Potomac Electric consolidated to 102 1/2. C. & P. Bank Dividends Received.

Dividends of the American Bank yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividends of 5 per cent paid to stockholders of record June 21, and due to announcement by Maurice Osterback, president.

Insurance Stockholders Meet.

The annual meeting yesterday of the stockholders of the First Insurance Co. of America, resulted in the election of nine trustees for the ensuing year, as follows: Charles Schmitz, W. F. Jones, R. E. Bergman, M. F. Johnson, and Carl J. Bergman, the last three named going on as new trustees.

Institute For Ethics.

Tribute to the memory of T. M. Lett, Secretary of the First Insurance Co. of America, who died in office as president of Washington Chapter American Institute of Banking, ended on May 31, during his incumbency, was paid last night by the board of governors in the form of a resolution.

"Whereas those of us in close touch with chapter affairs realize that the splendid results obtained are due in large measure to the masterful leadership of our retiring president, T. M. Lett, and whereas, therefore, he is deservedly entitled to the highest honor and recognition, the members of the board of governors, hereby express our deep appreciation of Mr. Lett's untiring devotion and untiring efforts in advancing the best interest of the chapter."

Dividends by Lincoln Bank.

The semiannual dividend of 5 per cent was yesterday declared by directors of the Lincoln National Bank, Inc., of St. Louis, and interest, pending conversion, 5 1/2 per cent.

The Iowa Public Service Co. has acquired the property of the Central Iowa Power & Light Co., and the Iowa Heat and Power Co. at several smaller properties, serving electric light and power in 200 communities in Western and North Central Iowa, and in four communities.

The bonds will be issued by a direct first mortgage on all the fixed properties of the company as owned or hereafter acquired, and will be held by the property now owned by the Iowa Public Service Co. for the 12 months ended April 30, 1927, unsecured to $37,18,653. During this period not earnings before depreciation and interest will be limited to 6 1/2 per cent, payments of the first mortgage bonds to be outstanding of $100,000.

The company management will be under the direct supervision of the new management of the Iowa Public Service Co. of Philadelphia. The latter company will also indirectly control 90 to 95 per cent of the common stock of the Iowa Public Service Company.

FEDERAL BUILDINGS IN 2 GROUPS, THIRD MALL PLAN REVEALS

Archways Would Cross All
Streets, Except Twelfth,
Officials Say.

BIG CIRCLE AND SQUARE PLAZA ARE ARRANGED

Commission Members Look for Further Changes Before Making Decision.

A new plan of arrangement of projected Federal buildings in the triangle of the Mall presenting a modification of a second plan calling for a single joined structure with arched traffic ways rimming the triangle, was submitted yesterday to the Public Buildings Commission by Treasury officials, and approved subject to further modification.

As a result of conferences between Treasury officials and private architects for the last six weeks regarding an original plan placing the buildings as separate structures and a second plan arranging them in a single boundary structure, conference presented what they termed a "unified architectural composition," providing two general joined groups of buildings that may be connected by archways across all the streets running through the triangle, except Twelfth street.

One of the largest circles in the world is provided for in the interior of the triangle with Twelfth street passing through the center of it, and having extending on either side of Twelfth, and north and south between C and D streets. A large square plaza also is arranged between Thirteenth, Fourteenth, B and D streets.

No Twelfth Street Arch.

North and south streets that pass through the triangle are Fourteenth, Twelfth, Ninth, Seventh and Sixth, all of them except Twelfth, believed to be arches. The Twelfth street will not be arch because it will be the important thoroughfare of the section.

Sequance of a unified architectural appearance along the Pennsylvania avenue side is delayed for the time being, however, by the construction of the new Archives Building, relocated from Pennsylvania avenue, Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, to an interior site east of Tenth street, between Pennsylvania avenue and B street, but not quite to Ninth street. Space for a U-shaped structure will be left around it.

In Western Group.

The projected Commerce Department will remain in the western group, with two buildings, one on B street and E street, with C and D passing through it under arches; the Internal Revenue Building, at Twelfth, Thirteenth, B and C streets, and the General Accounting Office on B, between Tenth and Twelfth streets.

Completion of the projected Department of Justice structure from Fifteenth, Fourteenth, Pennsylvania avenue and E streets, to the Center Market site, as advised by the Fine Arts Commission, still stands approved. This will relieve future traffic congestion at Twelfth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

Public buildings commission members, admitting the third plan may be changed further, said it presented a great improvement over any other arrangement yet suggested.

District Guardsmen Named to West Point

Seven members of the 121st Engineers, District National Guard, were designated yesterday to enter the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., July 1, this being believed a record for designations in one year from one regiment in the National Guard or Regular Army.

Eulogies of the former official will be delivered by Henry P. Blair, president of the Board of Education during Mr. Stuart's term; Stephen E. Kramer, first assistant superintendent of schools; Dr. John M. McLean, president of the National Capital Bank, and Dr. H. B. Learned, member of the Board of Education. Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, will preside.

A portrait of Mr. Stuart, presented to the school by a group of parents, will be unveiled by a granddaughter, Miss Irene Elliott Moore. Harry Angelico will sing and the Eastern High School Orchestra, directed by Mrs. C. V. Byron, will play. Invocation and benediction will be by the Rev. Charles H. Bush of the Columbia Heights Lutheran Church. The program was arranged by Claus Schwartz, principal of the school.

SIX INDICTMENTS HOLD MAN NORTHEAST ROBBER

Narcotic Act Violations and Criminal Operation Charged Against Physicians.

BILL CHARGES PERJURY

Louis Johnson, colored, said to have invaded a number of homes and stores in the Northeast section of the city, was named defendant in six indictments returned yesterday by the grand jury. Three of the indictments charge housebreaking only, two charge housebreaking and larceny and one charges an assault with a dangerous weapon.

The housebreaking indictments involve the alleged unlawful entry by the defendant into the home of Mrs. Mary F. Fries, 1603 Benning road, on May 19, and the entry into the store of Edward Krause at 632 K street northeast, on May 29, and the entry into the home of Mrs. Sallie L. Deck, 1635 Benning road, on May 30. Mrs. Fries' home was broken into by the defendant and Mrs. Deck's was broken into while asleep with a milk bottle. The bottle figures in the indictment charging assault with a dangerous weapon.

The two housebreaking and larceny indictments alleged that on May 27 the defendant broke into the store of Joseph Klein, 1201 Montello avenue northeast, and stole $17, and that on May 29 he broke into the home of Mrs. Mildred Hawkins at 1919 Benning road and stole $10.

Dr. Gains M. Brumbaugh, 905 Massachusetts avenue northwest, is charged with unlawfully issuing narcotic prescriptions, and Dr. Charles J. Demas, 1301 Massachusetts avenue northwest, is charged with the same offense. The two physicians are accused of having issued prescriptions to known addicts, by maintaining his customary use.

Dr. William L. Joyner is charged with an attempted illegal operation on March 1 on a young girl.

Ray Burdett was indicted on a charge of perjury. He is said to have been identified under oath before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turner on May 19 that he purchased a quantity of whisky from George Wilson at 516 Morton street northwest.

The names of other persons indicted and the charges against them will be found in the daily legal record of The Post.
